Party of U.S. Senators Here On Way North

A party of American senators, who will take part in ceremonies in connection with the opening of the new Peace River bridge on the Alaska Highway, arrived in Edmonton early Friday afternoon.

Headed by Senator James G. Scrugham, Nevada, the party will make an inspection trip over the whole length of the Alaska Highway, looking into construction, costs, and other details.

In the party are Senators Dennis Chavez, New Mexico; James O. Eastwood, Mississippi; John L. McClellan, Arkansas; C. Douglas Buck, Delaware; and E. H. Moore, Oklahoma.

Accompanying the senators is Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, United States department of the interior, who is in charge of the government's bureau of public works.

Commissioner T. McDonald, United States Public Roads Administration, is also a member of the party.

Chinese Allies Require Help To Battle Foe

How can Canadian help reach China? That is what people will naturally ask when they talk about the Chinese War Relief Fund's current campaign for $1,000,000 in this first national appeal for voluntary contributions.

Part of the answer is that essential materials of small bulk will go by bomber—through a plan devised by the British and Chinese governments.

Part of the answer is that things are getting to China by ancient trade routes, by new roads, by railroads, through in record time, by the trans-Pacific cable and channels which no blockade can control.

But the major part of the answer is that the Chinese are fighting for the sake of the world.

Rumor Calgary By-Election Off

Under the act, a by-election for a vacant seat must be called within 180 days after the vacancy occurs. Calgary is a five-member constituency and it is stated the city is well represented at the present.

A by-election would cost from $10,000 to $20,000 and as a general election will be held in 1945, the government will pass up the by-election and the money.

More Trainees Go Outside Dominion

OTTAWA, Aug. 27.—(CP)—Sending of additional call-up troops to Newfoundland and Labrador, Bermuda, the Bahamas, Jamaica, British Guiana, Alaska, and the United States is authorized in an order-in-council dated Aug. 11 and made public here today.

Previously the sending of some troops called up under the National Resources Mobilization Act to these areas was approved.

The latest order gives additional personnel as required and gives Defense Minister Ralston authority to send homefront troops to these areas serving in these territories.

As from time to time he deems necessary having regard to the military exigencies of the moment.

The order is that the military and differs from some of the previous orders which cover only particular military units or members of particular units.

Defeat Resolution

Bar Association Refuses To Endorse Banking System

WINNIPEG, Aug. 27.—(CP)—A resolution seeking endorsement of the present banking system in Canada was defeated today at the closing session of the 26th annual meeting of the Canadian Bar Association. The vote was 61 to 50.

Hon. R. L. Maitland, K.C. of Vancouver, said adoption of the resolution would have meant "treason on political ground."

The resolution was supported by Senator J. T. Haig of Winnipeg who declared it was a fundamental law.

ASKS FOR ADOPTION

During the debate, Senator Haig said association members would be "asleep at the switch" if they failed to adopt the resolution.

It called for endorsement of the fundamentals of the present banking system and expressed the view that the present Canadian bank act served the interests of the people in a satisfactory manner.

Mr. Maitland, attorney-general of British Columbia, was elected president of the association, succeeding G. H. Atkins, K.C. of Winnipeg.

Hon. F. P. Brann of Montreal was elected vice-president, and T. W. Wallace, K.C. of Winnipeg, was elected secretary-treasurer.

A committee on civil liberties was appointed to study federal legislation and order-in-council regarding emergency measures. G. M. V. Chitt of Toronto will be chairman of the committee.

Disapproval of the practice of appointing judges to administrative

QUEBEC CITY, Aug. 27.—

Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt will resume their war talks at Washington early next week, it was officially revealed today.

Churchill, it was announced at the Citadel, will join the president after spending a few days at a fishing camp in the Laurentian Mountains. The prime minister, his wife and daughter, are at the camp now, and yesterday afternoon Churchill tried his hand at fishing with success.

Churchill's Tuesday departure will be worldwide, it was understood at the close of the conference when the address was announced last Tuesday evening. On Wednesday, President Roosevelt visited Ottawa, while the prime minister's program was temporarily undisturbed.

SPEAKS FROM QUEBEC

The broadcast had originally been scheduled for Sunday, but a fishing camp in the Laurentian Mountains, he is in contact with the world by telephone and radio.

"He will join the president at Washington early next week," Churchill's second day of fishing has been more exciting than the first, it was said.

Remission on

Estate Duties

The Alberta government has cancelled an order-in-council passed recently which remitted provincial succession duties on the estate of the late Premier William Abernethy, it was announced Friday by Premier Ernest Manning. Duties are to be paid on the estate, which was valued at $51,773, amounting to $2,346.

Mr. Manning said a certain section of the public and the public press had voiced disapproval of the original order-in-council, which remitted the duties.

"In view of the disapproval that has been voiced, the government has cancelled the remission order, and the succession duties have been paid in full," the premier stated.

Complete text of Mr. Manning's announcement follows:

"A certain section of the public and the public press have voiced disapproval of the original order-in-council remitting succession duties on the estate of the late Premier William Abernethy."

The Bulletin's Sports Show

SPORTS EDITOR

THE Yanks played better ball, got superior pitching and so won the game—that in short is what happened at Renfrew Park on Thursday night in the opener of the 1943 city baseball title series.

But until they started kicking the ball around in the eighth, the Arrows were really better, even though Morris Hawkey hit by allowing more hits than he permitted in any other game this season. And it was the fourth time Hawkey had hooked up with the Arrows, the count now being two and two.

And just in case anybody might be curious—Hawkey has pitched 11 games so far this year and he has won seven of them. He beat the Dodgers twice, the Braves once, and the Yankees twice. In five of them he allowed seven hits. He gave up six or two in five of a pair, eight in one and last night in his worst showing was racked for 10.

Yesterday was Walter Misosky's third win for the Yanks, as against two losses. No other Army pitcher has won three. Harry Baldwin, Wayne Adams and Jerry Johnson have two wins and one defeat, although they have all worked in more than two games each. The Yankees have won two, but lost one and Pat Priest has one victory and one defeat charged against him. Gray pitched the tie with Hornets on July 13 and Adams and Baldwin in the no-decision affair with Dodgers two days earlier.

MILLER LEAD REACTION
THERE is little doubt but that Harry Miller, the leading pitcher of the Yanks, with the beautiful wit to first, is just about the finest fielding attraction ever seen at Renfrew and that he is not a bunting performer from pro league days either.

Twice before this year Miller has turned in seven-asit jobs, and against the Arrows he had seven along with one out, and on July 8 he had seven and read 5 outs, 7 assists, 1 error. Miller's fielding average for the 15 league games and last night's game is .888, but several of the 15 errors incurred while handling 17 chances resulting from going after balls many other players would surely write off as his. The Arrows had had his of nights of course, but nevertheless his work has been of an exceptionally high order and the fans really go for him. In fact probably more than any other player he has been the fast-traveling crowd from Keweenaw, Iowa, operate.

His cross-over step of Kahn's hard drive in the third frame night and subsequent bullet-like whip to Guleksan for the out was the finest fielding effort seen in the park this year. Harry tosses no rainbows, the ball travelling almost a straight line regardless of his throwing position.

The four double plays executed by the Yanks last night constituted a record for the year. The soldiers had a pair of two killings in two of their league games and their total for the season is now 20 including the triple made June 8, one which is better than an average of one per game.

Misosky Outpitches Hawkey in Title Playoff Opener

Double Plays Again Feature Army Fielding

THE Yanks went one up in the best-of-seven final of the city baseball title by pounding out a 6-1 victory over the Arrows in the opening game of the series at Renfrew Park on Thursday night.

While leftfielder Walter Misosky was shutting off the Arrows with just a quartet of safe hits, the Army boys rattled 10 off the pitching of Morris Hawkey, losing in an extra pair of trips and two doubles.

The Miller-Wrightworth-Guleksan double-play combination of the Yanks was really flying last night and ran up four twin killings, three of them coming with nobody down and giving a real lift to their chances.

Misosky struck out five and issued four passes, while Hawkey served six of the plate and gave no walks. Harry Miller and Gino Valente, the Yanks' first and second basemen, and Capt. Frank Wrightworth and Tony Lello the two baggers.

Gino Valente opened the inning in the opening frame, after Morley Lello had flied out to right field. Harry Miller then struck out the first batter, Fred Lupul, struck out the second, and then he struck out the third, but he was out down by a perfect pop from Baldwin.

Wrightworth, first up in the Yanks ball, struck out, but Harry Miller, second, made a fine out, but he was out down by a perfect pop from Baldwin.

The Yanks put the game on ice in the second frame by chasing three runs on a triple, a double and a pair of singles.

Wrightworth, first up in the Yanks ball, struck out, but Harry Miller, second, made a fine out, but he was out down by a perfect pop from Baldwin.

All-Stars Beat Service Nine; Bond Sales Hit $800,000,000

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(AP)—There was laughter and tears and measured memories in the historic Polo Grounds Thursday as more than 35,000 spectators turned out for an unforgettable baseball and vaudeville show that raised $800,000,000 in war bonds.

Coming British Fight Target of Sports Writers
LONDON, Aug. 27.—(CP)—Long-fought boxing writers, pulling no punches in virulent blasts against decisions surrounding the coming fight for the British and Empire lightweight championship, charged arrangements for the bout were "unhappy, the general," he added. One writer even said the bout should be banned.

Plans, approved by the British Boxing Board of Control, call for Freddie Mills, king of the light heavies, to clash with Jack London, biggest man in Britain's professional ranks, in a bout for the title. Mills, 22, at Queensberry Club, London, of space there, is a favorite of the public.

To make the venture pay, admission prices were set at a top of $15 and a low of 80. The limited seating and the luxury prices, the newspapers claimed, faked many a faithful follower who could not afford to attend even if he did have a chance to buy a ticket.

Sports Editor James Freeman of the Daily Mail charged that the contest under its present conditions "is a breach of the implied agreement which has governed the conduct of all wartime sports."

"Racing, football, cricket and other sports have fallen into line with the government," he added, "and provided entertainment for the masses under reasonable and approved conditions." He suggested the fight be switched to a London football ground on a Saturday afternoon.

John Ross in The Sunday Picture said that if he were in the position of Herbert Morrison, minister of labor and national service, he would "stop the fight now. The minister had said that professional sport was tolerated in war solely on its entertainment value for workers."

Mills, 18-pound one-time boxer at country fairs, and London, former truck driver, are sergeants in the Royal Air Force and proceeds from the bout after taxes and expenses have been subtracted, will go to war charities.

Maurice Gogek Hits Homer Centrals Trim Moose 5-1 In Fastball Semi-Finals

CENTRALS handed Moose a 5-1 setback at Kingsway Park Thursday night in the opener of their best of three Senior Men's Fastball League semi-final series. Second game in this playoff section will be staged Sunday afternoon starting at 3 o'clock.

Ed. McKee Fires Ace Yesterday
Ed. McKee, member of the city police force, fired a hole-in-one at the Municipal golf links Thursday afternoon. The latest recruit to the select circle shot his ace on the 17th green and he was playing with Ernie Hornsby, Charlie and George Edwards at the time. Ed. used a number 3 iron to the 185-yard hole.

Blake Barker turned in a stirring performance on the mound for the winners, holding Moose to four scattered hits. He also received seven support from his team, which completed three double plays to pull him out of some tight spots.

The winners' only counter came in the fourth when Bert Castellani walked, went to second on a passed ball, third on a double by Art Dalmar, and then on a passed ball, he was caught when he tried to steal home short to third to catcher.

The losers' only counter came in the eighth when Art Whitley received a free ticket to first, went to second on a wild pitch, third on Paul Yawen was retired at the initial catch and then came in on an error.

The winners' final tally came in the first on the ninth. Gogek made first on an error by Floyd Blackwell, second on a passed ball, third on a putout at first and home on a single by Coach Barker. Barker stole second and advanced on the way around the bases on two wild pitches.

Nebraskan Breaks 98 in Trap Shoot
VANDALIA, O., Aug. 27.—(AP)—James A. Sabala, 29-year-old farmer from David City, Neb., broke 98 out of 100 21 yards Thursday to defeat a field of 602 in the preliminary handicap at the 44th Grand American trapshoot, a target ahead of five other sharpshooters.

Manuel Ortiz Now Cashing in On Fight Game
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The world's lightweight champion, Manuel Ortiz, is beginning to collect dividends on his willingness to fight long and often. He was paid $30,000 for his bout with Jack Morris on Oct. 1 in Hollywood. He will defend his title for the seventh time this year.

Ortiz's opponent will be Leonardo Lopez, a fast, sharp-punching champion in the featherweight class. Ortiz is a natural. Fact of the matter is that Ortiz has cleared out all the opposition in the 118-pound class and is going to be obliged to invade the featherweight ranks.

Tommy Farmer, who guided him out of the preliminary division and got him to force the bout, and enjoy food and stick to a muscle-building routine of eating and sleeping the champion in the featherweight class will hold until next spring, although he would be adverse to a match with Lou Terranova, who recently felled Jackie Jacobs of Hamilton, Ont., in New Orleans.

Alabama Quits College Football
TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Aug. 27.—(AP)—The University of Alabama, powerhouse of southern football for many years, decided with deep regret Thursday to abandon the intercollegiate gridiron sport this fall.

Chapter XXIII.

Moscow was a buyers' market in the autumn of 1942. So when Wendell Wilkie came as personal representative of President Roosevelt, seeking precisely second-front stock, locked doors flew open. Frozen faces melted into smiles, and the Kremlin gave him the warmest welcome it had extended to a foreigner in many a moon.

In contrast to Prime Minister Churchill's visit, Wilkie's was one of back-slapping goodfellowship and closed in complete accord. But Churchill was the one who directed the destinies of one of Russia's great allies, while Wilkie was only a leader of the opposition in the other.

Wilkie's visit to Russia, in September, could have no immediate effect on the conduct of the war, since he was not in a position to make any official decisions, but it formed a remarkable chapter in the history of that period. It showed the Soviet desire for understanding and friendship, and it opened a new period of public pressure on the Allies to create a second front.

On his second day in Moscow, I was invited to dinner with Wilkie. I obtained a clear impression that Wilkie was in Moscow to get ammunition for a political battle, in case there should be an isolationist or fifth-columnist movement in America for peace before both Germany and Japan were completely defeated. He wanted the United States to enter the war until the victorious end. He also wanted to promise support for a western European offensive, by killing any suspicion that Russia would be down and leave a lone one when engaged with the Germans.

Stalin and Wilkie got along famously. For one thing, they were of the same mind on the most important subject of the day—the second front. For another, although they spoke different languages, Russian and English, they talked them. It was the same way, Stalin liked Wilkie personally, and Wilkie admired Stalin.

LONG TALK
They were together for two hours and fifteen minutes, a long time for a Kremlin talk. Molotov and an interpreter were present. Wilkie handed a written message from President Roosevelt to Stalin, and received a verbal answer. They talked of Soviet and American industrial production, of Soviet desire for more active Allied aid, of victory and a peace, where each nation would live according to its own like. Wilkie went away, and on the need for a second front. He went immediately to the "first front". Shopping at the GUM, he bought a hat and a first supper, he drove west that same night, under a pale Russian moon, to the Red army zone near Rostov.

This trip was the roughest one which the Soviets had long since organized. It gave Wilkie a chance, however, to talk to some soldiers and peasants. It also gave him a second sleepless night, for after dusk he started the drive back to Moscow.

On his last day in Moscow, he gave a cocktail party given by the correspondents in the Associated Press room at the Hotel Metropol, and handed out a statement, summing up his visit. I am now convinced we can beat him back by establishing a real second front in Europe with Great Britain at the earliest possible moment our military leader will approve," he said, "and perhaps some of them need some public prodding. Next summer might be too late."

KREMLIN VIEW

That rather ominous statement reflected the Kremlin view. But before Wilkie left, on his last night in Moscow, the most revealing of the Soviet attitude was at the Kremlin during his dinner at the Kremlin.

That dinner was the most intimate of any offered to an important visitor. Twenty-eight persons attended. At 8 p.m., they walked through the Supreme Soviet chamber, the chamber of the People's Commissars, and entered the St. Alexander room.

Stalin placed Wilkie on his right and Admiral Standley on his left, with an interpreter beside each of them. It started out as a merry meal. It became merrier in the course of twenty-seven toasts.

Stalin proposed a toast to his guest of honor, Wilkie. Wilkie replied with a toast to Stalin and Churchill. Molotov toasted Roosevelt. That took care of formalities. Then the fun began.

CHIDED INTERPRETERS

Stalin chided the interpreters for translating in dull, flat voices, without emotion. Wilkie promptly toasted the interpreters, "the only ones who are working here tonight." Stalin drank to their health and remarked that when they translated that toast, it was the first time they sounded as though they meant what they were saying.

Joseph Barnes proposed a toast to great correspondents in Russia, and to Soviet journalists, to which Molotov replied, "I am drinking to Barnes as a correspondent who has been fair and just in Moscow. Gardner Cowles, Jr., who was also with Wilkie's party, brought them to their feet with a toast to drink to the average Russian soldier. Then matters took a serious turn.

Commander Paul Phil, Wilkie's naval aide, suggested a toast to air pilots, which was duly drunk. Stalin turned the conversation immediately to Red air force pilots who he said were fighting well, although they knew the "Himmlers" they were flying were not so good as Aradoes, and the Hurricanes they were flying were not so good as Spitfires. His tone was severe. He carried it even farther, by asserting a hundred and fifty Aradoes, which were to be delivered to Russia, had been intercepted en route and diverted to the British.

Wilkie tried to lighten the tone by remarking that Stalin certainly kept his eye on the ball. That took some explanation, through the interpreters, about golf and baseball, before Stalin got the point. Then he agreed, he did keep his eye on the ball.

But a serious charge had been made, even though presented casually. Clark Kerr, the only British guest, had to reply. He said he had long studied Stalin's character, even before coming to Russia from China, and he had admired him, especially for his bluntness. That quality, he said, called for bluntness in reply. The Soviet Union, Great Britain, and the United States were united in a common cause, he pointed out, and if any planes were diverted from Russia, it would only be to further the cause of all three. If such a thing had happened, he concluded, he was sure Stalin knew about it in advance and knew it was for the best. That was the final speech.

"Nothing the British ambassador has said will be taken amiss," Stalin said, and the guests adjourned to the library room of St. Andrew where the fun was resumed.

Warily, but happily, the guests wended their way home in the early morning hours. Just before noon of September 27, Wilkie flew off for Khabarovsk and Chungking. There was a serious aftermath in the Wilkie case. He had come as President Roosevelt's representative, to study the Russian people and Red army, and to promote friendship between the Russian and American peoples. The way in which he carried out that mission provided some upsets for the American embassy.

OLD-FASHIONED LECTURE

During the reception at Spasskoe, I had seen Admiral Standley, pointing a corner table until it bounced, delivering what seemed to be an old-fashioned lecture to Wilkie. That evening, Wilkie, who had been introduced to Molotov by Standley, went out to the ambassador-to see Stalin. That could only be interpreted by an ambassador as interference in his affairs and undermining of his position.

Again, Wilkie issued his statement about "public prodding" without advising the embassy of its contents. It was only after the statement had appeared in the American press that the United States diplomats, accredited to the Soviet government, knew about it. The attitude of the Wilkie party may have been that there was an unofficial, and that they were under no obligations to the embassy. The embassy did not see it that way.

A few days after Wilkie left, Admiral Standley also took off for Washington with his military and naval attaches. The ambassador returned late in the year with his personal position strengthened, and his attaches promoted to the ranks of brigadier-general and rear admiral. By then, the period of "prodding" had passed.

European Jewish Population Said Down to 3,000,000

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—AP.—The Institute of Jewish Affairs reported last night that the European Jewish population had been reduced from 9,500,000 to 3,000,000 in the 16 years since Hitler came into power.

Of 52,000 Jews living in Germany in 1933, "only some 5,000 will remain," the report added. "More than 2,000,000 Jews have been destroyed in the four-year period since the outbreak of war by planned starvation, forced labor, deportation, pogroms, and the methodical murder in the German-run extermination centers of eastern Europe," the report continued.

Translator Charged As German Agent

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—AP.—Roberto Lanza Vallecilla, 35, a foreign language translator for the federal coordinator of inter-American affairs in Washington, was charged in a United States federal grand jury indictment yesterday with conspiracy to commit espionage for the German Reich. The indictment stated the alleged conspiracy took place before the United States entered the war, making 20 years' imprisonment the maximum penalty upon conviction, federal officials said.

Britain to Watch New German Govt.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—(CP)—Herbert S. Morrison, home secretary, predicted in an late of Man speech yesterday that Britain's post-war policy would be "to sit on the head of any German government for five, 10, 20, 50, or even 100 years to make sure there will be no war." He also issued an international armed force to police the world under control of a new league of nations.

U.S. Senator To Dedicate New Peace River Bridge

International Ceremony To Attract Distinguished Assemblage of Dignitaries

Senator James G. Scruggs of Nevada, chairman of a sub-committee of the U.S. Senate Committee on post office and post roads which is to make an inspection of the Alaska Highway area, will make the dedicatory address formally presenting to Canada the suspension type bridge recently constructed over the Peace River. He was one of a party of senators who arrived here Friday on the way to the bridge opening.

Home on Leave

The ceremony will be held at 10 a.m. on Monday, August 30. Hon. Herbert Anscombe, minister of Public Works for British Columbia, will represent Premier John Hart in receiving the bridge.

Brig. Gen. James A. O'Connor, Commanding General of the Northwest Service Command, will officiate at the ceremony. He will be accompanied by the following: Maj. Gen. Philip D. Fleming, administrator of the Federal Works Agency, Washington, D.C., under which is located the Public Roads Administration; Maj. Gen. C. Douglas Bunker, of Delaware, administrator of the Alaska Highway project; and a former governor of the state.

DECORATE BRIDGE
The bridge will be decorated with bunting around a platform which will be approximately in the center of the bridge. Flanking the bridge will be large Canadian and United States flags, with a color guard of the Canadian and United States troops.

The red, white and blue ribbon stretching across the bridge will be cut with scissors manipulated by Hon. D. Angell, member of the House of Representatives from Oregon, who has been visiting the Northwest Service Command area and will attend the ceremony.

WILL TAKE PART
Brig. Gen. L. D. Gordon, North West Division engineer, and members of his staff will take part in the ceremonies.

Col. R. S. Bush, chief of staff of the Northwest Service Command, will introduce those who take part in the program on the platform.

Thomas H. MacDonald, administrator of the Public Roads Administration, also is coming from Washington, and will take part in the ceremony.

The substructure of the bridge was built by the Duffell-Bridge Company of Toronto and the superstructure was built by the John A. Roebing and Sons Company of Trenton, New Jersey.

Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works for Alberta province also will attend the ceremony.

South Edmonton Veterans' Volunteer Reserve, C. Company, will parade at 10:30 hours Friday at Bennett school time for target practice at 100 yards, and other range work.

Total 61,000 Ration Books Are Given Out

More than 61,000 ration books have been distributed in Edmonton during the three-day distribution period. There are still a number of persons who have not applied for their books and the distribution center is open until 5 p.m. Friday.

The distribution proceeded smoothly this year and Mr. McKee, superintendent of rationing, said that "the distribution in the province is 50 per cent ahead of schedule and it is hoped to have it complete by Saturday night when all the country centres close."

The distribution is being handled by the Citizens' Volunteer Bureau. The public was more cooperative and seemed to have a better understanding of regulations than during the first distribution. The country centres, which will remain open until Saturday night.

AHEAD IN SOUTH
The circulation of ration books in Calgary is well ahead of Edmonton with 85,000 books out in the city, while in Edmonton 61,000 books have been distributed.

It cannot be estimated just how many are away on holidays, but the 61,000 does not complete the distribution here.

I Saw Today Edmonton Girl Wins High Praise As Member Women's Army Corps

Mothers throughout Canada who today are wondering if they are doing the right thing in granting permission for their 15-year-old daughters to join the Canadian Women's Army Corps, need never have another doubt if they were to look in and see that the young women are doing what have done uniforms all day long. They are doing the right thing in granting permission for their 15-year-old daughters to join the Canadian Women's Army Corps, need never have another doubt if they were to look in and see that the young women are doing what have done uniforms all day long.

What they saw there could fill many pages for there is much that could be written about the fine comradeship that exists among the girls of the C.W.A.C. in their splendid calibre and personality of its leaders, the pleasant, helpful and carefully supervised surroundings in which the girls work and learn. Wonderful comradeship and attitude are offered the girls in uniform.

Burned while cleaning a stove with a gasoline-solvent rag, Mrs. Robert E. Halstead, 10210 104th street, was rushed to the Royal Alexandra hospital in a Jack Mac ambulance at 11:30 a.m. Friday. The extent of her injuries was not stated.

THE ANSWERS
TOM MASON, writer. To me it seems like a mixed blessing. I agreed that the harvest must be a bumper crop. I agreed that it is also felt that when a soldier in the army, he should be soldierly. I hope the plan will prove satisfactory.

HARRY TIMELECK, trucker. I am not specially familiar with the plan, but I think it should work out satisfactorily. It is difficult for farmers to get workers who are not familiar with their programs and it is trying for soldiers to suddenly be re-precipitated into a harvest. But if they try to do it right together, there is no reason why it should not be successful.

HARRY HARGRAVES, pipe-fitter. It is worth trying. There is no reason why it should not be a success, so far as I can see.

Death Writes the Last Edition

By ADELINE McELFRESH

CHAPTER XI
"Dave, what's wrong?" You sound a—queer." Pat's voice was muffled. "Has anything happened?"

Dave hesitated. Pat could pick the darndest times to call! He gripped the telephone tighter and stared at Myra Rose's retreating back.

"No, Pat. I—you—" he floundered hopelessly for a moment, then his tongue straightened itself out. "Just a little surprise," he told her. "I'll tell you about it to-night."

"That's what I wanted to tell you about, Dave," she went on. "Why don't you ask Clem and Mary to come with you? We'll have supper together and spend a comfy evening. Just like old times."

"Swell, Pat. Dave tried to be enthusiastic, but his spirits went into a tailspin. He didn't, he told himself, want to spend an evening with him—and him alone.

"Good, Jerry has some sort of a Scout meeting and Neither is going over to visit Aunt Sarah Harrington, so you can plan on helping with the dishes." She laughed at his grin of consternation.

"I knew there'd be a catch to it," he growled. "Okay, Pat. We'll be there with bells on. Bye, now."

He hung up and turned to the others.

"Go on, say it," he grinned, a little of the old excitement returning. "Tell me I'm a chump!"

"Not chump, Dave," Myra Evans said. "Chump."

"Right you are, honey," Clem agreed with her before Dave had a chance to speak. "Congratulations, son."

"Nice, son," Eleanor piped up, and Rod Thomas joined in. "You were shot the old gal up pronto."

Dave. He already started to rack his brain about another job. Dave chuckled. "Maybe you'd better not stop yet, Rod," he said. "I still have to convince the bank that they should back me."

Dave hailed a cruising taxi and went to the big house on Elm street that had been home to Joe Parker for so long. He wanted to talk to Mrs. Harrington.

"Hello, girl of my dreams," he bowed low when Aunt Sarah answered his knock.

"Go on, son, with your flattery, Dave Elson," she laughed heartily, throwing the door.

He followed her into the living room with its comfortable old furniture and cherry grate fire.

"What is it, Dave?" Mrs. Harrington stirred up the fire and three on another stick of wood from the ornate box in the corner before she sat down.

Dave leaned, crackling, up the cavernous chimney. She waited patiently until he was ready.

"Hesitantly, Dave told her what had happened. Of Myra Rose's arrival and her decision to sell the property. Of the mildly recent view she took of the whole estate, her announcement that there was no reason why she should not have the money now, regardless of what had happened.

Only when she told her of his impetuous offer to buy the Express did she smile.

"I'm glad, Dave," she murmured, trying to hide the tears that made her voice tremble. "Mr. Parker would be happy, too, if he could know."

She wiped her eyes with the corner of her big apron. Dave reached out and patted her hand. His own eyes felt suspiciously moist.

"Maybe," he whispered, "maybe he does know, Aunt Sarah."

"Come on in," Patricia called when Dave announced his arrival with a sharp whistle, and Clem and Mary and Police Chief Sam Blair greeted him into the room.

"We welcome Mr. Blair," she greeted him in surprise, then "Dave, what have you done that you have to have a police escort?"

"He's a public enemy, Pat," the police chief boomed. "A menace to the heart of every pretty girl town."

"Oooh, Dave, give the man a quarter!" Pat laughed.

When the dishes were done and they had all gone into the living room, Pat began to talk comfortably. Something, she could not figure it, exactly, warned her of a mounting tension.

"Is there something going on around here that I don't know about?" she asked innocently.

"Heavens, I hope not," the police chief boomed. "A menace to the heart of every pretty girl town."

"Dave Elson," she murmured, trying to hide the tears that made her voice tremble. "Mr. Parker would be happy, too, if he could know."

She wiped her eyes with the corner of her big apron. Dave reached out and patted her hand. His own eyes felt suspiciously moist.

"Maybe," he whispered, "maybe he does know, Aunt Sarah."

"Come on in," Patricia called when Dave announced his arrival with a sharp whistle, and Clem and Mary and Police Chief Sam Blair greeted him into the room.

"You're all forgetting, that's why even you, Mary."

Mrs. Evans laughed and the others joined in, but Pat wasn't satisfied. She settled back to await developments, wondering if this, wherever it was, could be the reason for Sam Blair's surprise visit.

Certainly, she thought, Dave's announcement that he was going to buy the Express had not caused their nervousness.

At 9 o'clock it happened. Someone knocked—and a dropped pin would have sounded like a brick.

"I get it, Pat," Mary was already hurrying into the hall. The brief silence seemed like an age to Pat as the three men leaned forward expectantly. But Dave saw, was watching her out of the corner of his eye.

"I'm George Rand," came the man's voice. "Is Sam Blair here?"

Pat started up, then sat down again. She threw a frightened look at Sam Blair, then at Dave.

"That's him," she whispered hoarsely. "That's the man who was in Parker's study, Dave."

McCoys Health Service

On an average of about 2 out of 3 cases of tuberculosis treated by a modern method, a moderately advanced, or seriously advanced stage. The disease reaches these serious stages before it is diagnosed and treated in about 66 per cent of the cases.

Usually it is totally overlooked in the early stages, when it is most easily cured. The main reason it is not diagnosed soon enough is that the first symptoms happen to be of such a nature that they appear to be due to some trivial cause of little importance.

The first symptom likely to be noticed by the patient is early fatigue. He becomes tired more quickly than formerly, and yet this tiredness is not startling enough or striking enough to cause any alarm.

He thinks he is run-down, or that he has been doing too much or that he needs a tonic. The fatigue may be accompanied by a loss of weight, which takes place so gradually that the patient may not notice it.

Even if he is the exceptional patient who consults a doctor at this early stage, the lung lesion may be overlooked unless the chest is examined by a specialist. The report on a single sputum test may not be reliable, for the report may be negative. In the early stage, the tubercle bacilli are not yet found in the sputum.

When tuberculosis of the lungs is first starting, it generally attacks a young adult, between 15 and 35, localities in the upper part of one lung, and thereafter develops slowly.

For quite a long time, the affected patch may not be very large and the patient has still to develop the significant findings of advanced tuberculosis such as night sweats, afternoon temperature, flushing of the cheeks and hemorrhage.

How fast this disorder will progress depends upon several factors. Those who have inherited an immunity to the disease, or who have acquired this immunity, may undergo a successful healing process, with the body able to cope with the invader. In such circumstances, complete healing may occur and the patient remain unaware that he has ever had tuberculosis.

If the general resistance is low and treatment is neglected, the disease may progress to a moderately advanced stage before the patient realizes its danger. At the present time, tuberculosis of the lungs is the chief cause of death among young adults, in spite of the fact that when treated early enough, the disease is curable. Earlier diagnosis not only promises greater certainty of cure, but also shortens the length of time treatment will be needed.

If there are any young people in your family who complain of being tired and who are losing weight, the best plan is to have them examined. Try to make sure the chest is examined with the X-ray, as this type of examination is especially valuable. It would also be a good plan to have a tuberculin test made.

The main problem in present day tuberculosis is how to get young people examined early enough so that the disease is found in time. Earlier diagnosis means a better hope of eventual cure.

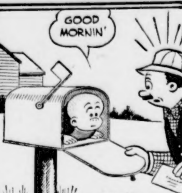

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address: Mrs. Evans, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Flower Display Auctioned For Chinese Relief

A magnificent display of gladioli and dahlias donated by members of the Edmonton Horticultural Society was sold by auction on Thursday night in aid of the Chinese Relief Fund.

The flower show which opened to the public at 2 p.m. Thursday night took place in the city market building. All blooms were donated to the Horticultural Society for the purpose of the fund. The auctioneers also donated their services as the entire proceeds could be turned over to the fund.

Bidding was high and prize-winning gladioli sold very well. The best spike in the show, a white bloom, was bought and resold three times as the buyer each time re-donated it to the show. Some gladioli sold for as high as $1.50 a spike, and the prize-winning bloom for $10.

Other items at the auction are reported to have purchased more than $50 worth of gladioli.

The Chinese residents who were present at the auction seemed to favor the pom-pom variety of dahlias and kept the bidding high for those blooms.

It is estimated that more than $100 was raised for the Chinese Relief Fund by the auction sale.

Besides the blooms entered for competition there were also dahlias, sweet peas, and many other varieties, all donated.

2 Are Injured During Fracas On South Side

Two men, Henry Bolton Reid, recently discharged from Fort Saskatchewan, Alta., and William Matheson, 3926 70th avenue, were admitted to University Hospital late Wednesday night as a result of a fight allegedly started by Reid.

Both men were injured in the fracas with Reid's head discharging three deep cuts, a cut palm on the right hand, and another below the right knee. He was said by authorities to be suffering from a possible fracture of the skull. Matheson received a lacerated finger, bruised eye, bruised face and had some teeth loosened.

Police authorities were first notified that there was trouble about 10 p.m. when they received a call from Mrs. Matheson, who stated that her husband had been injured in a fight.

Interviewing Matheson, police were told by him that a stranger had come to his home and asked who was crying there.

"Would you call me a liar?" demanded the stranger, and followed the question with a blow from his fist. Matheson was knocked down.

Oakes' Accused Slaver Is Silent

NASSAU, Bahamas, Aug. 27.—(CP)—Alfred De Marigny remained silent today when he was asked whether he had any comment to make on the charge against him that he murdered the millionaire father-son duo, Sir Harry Oakes.

Nagistrate R. E. Field asked the question as the prosecution ended its testimony by a preliminary hearing which was opened July 12. Four days after Sir Harry Oakes' death and burned body was found at his estate here.

"Anything you say may be used against you at the trial," Field warned.

Defence Counsel Geoffrey Field interpreted with the request that he be allowed to produce one witness for De Marigny, Dr. Ulrich Orkney, who he said may not be here in October—the earliest date that a trial could be held.

Field ruled that Higgs would have to give the prosecution notice of his request, and request the hearing until next Tuesday without rendering a decision.

Sumner Welles Informs Friends Of Resignation

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Sumner Welles has written several South American diplomats, who are personal friends, telling them that he has resigned as under-secretary of state. It was learned last night.

State Secretary Cordell Hull was asked at a press conference Wednesday about reports that Hull had told President Roosevelt that either Welles or himself must leave. Hull replied that he was not the author of the saying that kind of language about anyone anywhere, and then added that he would have been glad to say so on the subject at that time.

ELPHANTS DO NOT SMELL
THRU THEIR NOSES (TRUCKS)

Although an elephant will raise its trunk into the air when it smells, it does not smell through that trunk or nose at all. An elephant smells with its mouth and the raised trunk is merely to bring the air into the back of the mouth for smelling. An odd fact about elephants is that they can remain silent for months at a time, and their ears are never closed. They have been known to remain silent for weeks in a row.

Draws Two-Year Sentence
Uttering Forged Documents

Harry P. Findlay, sentenced to two years in the Prince Albert penitentiary concurrently, on each of four counts of uttering forged documents, together with an additional six months for being in possession of opium and a fine of $200 and costs, will have an additional three months to serve if the fine is not paid, he was told by the magistrate, A. L. Miller, K.C., in city police court Friday morning.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police searched the premises of the prisoner on Aug. 28. It was stated at the time that weapons were found and the man apprehended. He readily admitted having uttered several prescriptions in the city.

These prescriptions, for tincture of opium, purportedly made up by a physician, had been used in the purchase of the drug by the accused.

Findlay, who pleaded guilty to all five charges, told the court that he had tried to get the drug from 30 doctors and having failed to get relief that way, had acted on the documents in his possession.

There was a long list of convictions against him, observed Mr. Miller.

At Hamilton, Ont., on two occasions in 1935, he had been convicted of passing the forged and attempted passes of worthless cheques. Again, in Ontario, he was convicted of uttering forged documents in 1931; in Vancouver, in 1936, he was again convicted for false pretences. Other convictions were made in New Orleans and Portland, while in 1934 he was convicted of purloining and receiving narcotics.

In 1936, at Chicago, he was convicted for concealing narcotics, and in 1937 was deported to Canada from Kansas City. A year later he was sentenced to 12 months in Ontario for aiding the several latencies at Grazziano.

Large numbers of dispersed plates on the target field were hit and 15 enemy fighters were destroyed in light running battles. Three planes shot down in the 24-hour cycle up to this morning totalled 15. Allied headquarters announced.

There is no more crying here. While the heavy bombers hit Campa, 17 miles north of Naples on the Tiber, the medium bombers, flying Grazziano, in the vicinity of Naples, R.A.F. Wellingtons, in the suburbs of Naples, roared over Bagnoli again with blockbusting.

A British naval force bombarded a railway and bridges in the vicinity of Luni on the east coast of the toe of Italy Tuesday night, a navy communiqué announced today.

U.S. Bombers Renew Blows Against Italy

By NOLAN NORGARD
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS.
North Africa, Aug. 27.—(AP)—United States heavy and medium bombers in strong force renewed their assault on the Italian peninsula yesterday with a set of scorching attacks on key targets. The attacks were made in the form of a series of raids, the first of which was a heavy attack on the city of Palermo. The attack was made by a force of 100 bombers, which dropped a large number of incendiary bombs on the city. The attack was followed by a series of raids on other targets in the peninsula, including the cities of Catania and Messina. The attacks were part of a larger campaign to destroy the Italian war effort and to bring about a speedy end to the war.

Children Killed at School Hit by Lightning

Seven Children
Killed at School
Hit by Lightning

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Aug. 27.—(CP)—Seven children were killed and more than 20 injured when lightning struck a school building in Kingston, Jamaica, yesterday. The school was hit by a lightning bolt which struck the roof and caused a fire to break out. The fire spread rapidly and soon the building was in flames. The children were in the school at the time of the attack and many of them were killed. The school was a primary school and the children were of various ages. The attack was a tragedy for the community and the families of the children who were killed.

Fighters Destroy, Damage 306 Ships

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS.
North Africa, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Allied fighters destroyed or damaged a total of 306 enemy ships of various types evacuating German and Italian troops from Sicily between Aug. 17 and 27, a joint British-American report said today.

RCAF squadrons were operating with the R.A.F. in these operations.

Of the total, which ranged from large to medium-sized merchant ships, 176 were listed as definitely destroyed, 47 as knocked out by direct hits and 223 severely damaged by near misses.

Coastal air force planes were also active, attacking and sinking 10 enemy aircraft and rescuing 15 downed airmen from the Mediterranean.

GOEBELS SAYS
GERMANY FACES
DEADLY DANGER

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(AP)—German Propaganda Minister Goebbels was reported last night to have announced the designation of broader powers for Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler by saying:

"Never before in his history has Germany been in such danger as today, and therefore it is now necessary if Germany is to remain a nation."

The BBC in a broadcast heard by NBC said the statement was "a warning to the world."

Goebbels was quoted as saying that Germany was facing a deadly danger and that the only way to survive was to fight to the death.

Packing Plants Seek More Help

The output of most of Edmonton packing plants is being seriously affected by the "men, women, and children" shortage, according to a statement made by the head of the packing industry here.

He was commenting on the situation after a report from Calgary that there will be a surplus of jobs on farms this fall unless the plant labor shortage is relieved.

The official statement said that the situation was "very serious" and that the packing plants were "in a desperate position."

3 or 4 Saturation Raids In Single Night Forecast

By ALAN RANDAL
London, Aug. 27.—(CP)—Overseas here see the day coming and in the not too distant future, when Bomber Command may carry something up to three or four raids on a single German city in a single night on a large scale, rather than on successive nights, as was the case with Himmler.

Slav Organizations
Are Planning Rally

Newspapers in London will hold a joint rally at 8:30 p.m. Sunday, in the Imperial Hall, 198 Avenue.

The purpose of the rally is to strengthen Canada's war effort, and where possible to encourage the Slav peoples of Europe in their struggle against Nazi and Fascist oppression.

The gathering is sponsored by the Initiative Slav committee of the Canadian Slav Association, Canadian Slav Association, Czechoslovak National Alliance, Russian Greek Orthodox Church, Polish Association in Aid of Prisoners, and the All-Slavic Association.

Tommy Manville "Calls It Quits"

Tommy Manville said yesterday that he would call it quits with his seventh wife, the former Marie Louise (Suzanne) Anisworth, whom he married Wednesday, and that he would seek an annulment. He said the breakup occurred Wednesday night, seven hours and 45 minutes after the wedding ceremony. Mrs. Manville, reached at her hotel, said if there was any chance of reconciliation, replied "I don't think so. I'm waiting to hear from him."

Let's Face the Facts!

CANADA'S farmers have done their part—and done it nobly. With a lot of little help, they have shown extra land and brought it to produce more food than ever before. More food for our Armed Forces—more food for our Allies—more food for ourselves.

Yet in the midst of all this plenty, Canada faces a food crisis. Food in the fields is not food on your table—and food in your pen is not food for your pig or on the high seas. The food in the fields must be harvested and then processed in the food factories, and there aren't enough people to do this job. THE SITUATION IS DESPERATE!

There is only one answer! YOU STOREKEEPERS, PROFESSIONAL MEN, RETIRED FOLK, INDUSTRIAL WORKERS, HOUSEWIVES AND YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN AT HOME—set aside your evening hours, but do a whole day's work or more, to help harvest and process the food we'll need this winter.

THESE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS MAY HELP YOU DECIDE:

Q. What work will be required of me?

A. Picking vegetables and tomatoes, digging potatoes, haying, bucking and harvesting.

Q. Will I be paid?

A. Yes, at a rate that you can work out with the farmer with whom you work. A set wage is not in force and you may have had previous experience which makes you more valuable than a beginner.

Q. How many hours will I have to work?

A. As many as possible. A whole day is best, or a week. But even afternoons and evenings will help considerably.

Q. How will I get out to the job?

A. If possible, get a group of four or five to go together and alternate cars each evening. Cases will vary, but it will be part of your job to arrange your own transportation to suit your need.

Q. To whom should I apply to offer my services?

A. Read this:

THIS IS WHAT YOU SHOULD DO! ACT NOW!

1. Consult any special local committee or office established to deal with farm labor placements in your city or town or

2. Write your Provincial Director of Farm Labour at the Capital of your province; or

3. Get in touch with your nearest Employment and Selection Service Office.
